

JACKSON COUNTY SENTINEL

VOL. 19, No. 48

GAINESBORO, TENN., THURSDAY, NOV. 29 1917

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR

CITIZENS OF JACKSON COUNTY GIVE LIBERALLY TO Y. M. C. A. FUND.

The campaign in Jackson county for subscriptions to the Army and Navy Y. M. C. A. fund came to a close Saturday, Nov. 24. Over $2,500 was subscribed. This is $1,000 in excess of the county's allotment, which shows the true spirit of patriotism. All but a few, and a very few, were ready and willing to contribute to the fund, knowing that in so doing they were doing their bit for the soldiers in this country and on the battle fields in France and Italy.

In the Cookeville district composed of 12 counties, Jackson lead in amount contributed. E. D. Burton, chairman of this district, reports the following amounts from the counties: Jackson, $2,500; Putnam, $2,400; White, $1,500; DeKalb, $1,500; Smith, $1,500; Overton, $800; Fentress, $525; Cumberland $750; Morgan, $800. Pickett, Clay, and Macon hadn't reported.

The following is a list of the contributors in Jackson county and the amount given by each.

FROM OUR BOYS —IN KHAKI.—

Camp Jackson,
Columbia, S. C.,
Nov. 24, 1917.

To the Sentinel:

We come in contact with all types of men here, out the most conspicuous one is the guy with the mole visor, who might claim that an O. D. outfit makes every man the same sort of a man. He would back up his near-sighted claim by declaring that "clothes makes the man." But this myopic make has never really lived in any army cantonment. If he had enjoyed such a privilege even his restricted gaze might have told him that there are types in khaki just as truly as there in the ankle length pants and the colored necktie.

One of these types is the "Boob, who thinks he's better. We all have him spotted, and when we think of him our fists swing outward involuntarily. We reach unconsciously for a missile to hurl. If there is none, some of us unbottle some of the language that the Y. M. C. A. huts have signs against. These hidden resources of language failing us, we lapse into disgust, which is really more effective than indigo expletives. For the "Boob" who thinks he's better lurks in every camp. He is not here because he wants to be, that fact he frankly admits. Not that he would not be willing to do his share in the war, if allowed to choose and pick he might, but it would be a soft-handed, white-collared, cologne-scented bit. He really would not associate with the common herd, for he is a better sort of breed. He is unused to contact with the bristle necks. He finds the jostle of crude elbows so annoying, and one is even forced to wash ones dishes with these crude fellows, which this "Boob" hates. He disdanes to disrobe in plain sight of a rude fellow, who has driven a truck and to have remarks made by this rude fellow to another rude fellow, who has been until recently a fixer of plumbing. He shuns the company of the ruddy faced, brown armed, clear-eyed, strong minded boys, who have for years fed him by the sweat of their brows.

All this is very distasteful to the "Boob" who thinks he's better. He takes pleasure in informing us boys that he has never been thrown with rough, unhewn men. They are from a different order. He only tolerates the royal herd.

Local Board, if you should find one of the above named "Boobs" please warn him of his coming doom, for he sure has a rough road ahead, not because of the road, but because of himself. He is as out of touch with the democratic spirit as if he had lived in the time of King Geo. II. His nose has been inherited from a family in which the proboscis has always been on a forty-five degree angle, though perhaps the "Boob" can not be blamed, and certainly a term as a member perforce of the great brotherhood in American leggings and service stetsons will bring the "Boob" to his senses, and make him realize that after all, he is not better, but only a "Boob."

This is only one character. Most of us boys are very cheerful and jolly. We are all in high spirits, inspired by the ideals that make this nation free. This spirit must be kept alive despite all the hardships and sufferings ahead, for these are attacks of depression, loneliness and despair that come in dark hours to the bravest of men. These can be warded off by every one who has a son, friend, or relative in the ranks, showing that you are behind him by sending him a message of consolation or something nice to eat.

The American Government calls to its colors every liberty-loving man and woman in this country to help in its program of promoting the physical, mental and spiritual well-being of your sons, friends and loved ones in the ranks. There must be no break in the first line of communication between the camp and the home. Upon you depends the happiness of us boys, who are now fighting, and of those of us who are in perhaps the near future to fight your battles. You will not fail us in our hour of need.

Nov. 23, 1917.

Dear Mr. Editor:

Will drop a few lines for your paper.

We boys arrived in Camp Gordon, Nov. 15th. We found every thing better than we expected. The boys are all feeling fine over taking a twenty mile hike Friday 17th. Some of us thought we knew some little, but found out different, though we hope to learn something before we come back.

We want to thank those girls for the nice candy they gave us.

We haven't any uniforms yet. Looking for them at any time.

We Jackson county boys are all together in the same Company. We will leave for Columbia, S. C. next week.

Write all the news boys to the Jackson County Sentinel, for we like to hear from home boys.
